

To Whom It May Concern:

As a former student of this math 120 online class I thought I would be a bit of help and give some insight on the class. When taking an online class one does not know what to expect. For my part I was pleased to have the detailed curriculum that was needed for this class. I was able to follow a calendar that showed when homework assignments, quizzes and exams were due. Not only that but the calendar helps to keep you on track by showing you day by day what assignment number one should be on. There will also be discussion boards that become very helpful when one gets stuck on an assignment which I felt helped me greatly. With the discussion board I was able to see that others were also in need and it wasn't just me and because not only the teacher was helpful but my other classmates.

I think when it comes to any class the best place to study is in the library because at there you don't have as many distractions like you would at home. I think the practice tests that we are given before each exam will be very helpful for everyone, so I suggest putting more attention to them. I also enjoyed and thought the solutions manual was very useful when it came down to studying and homework. I hope to find these options or similar ones the next time I take an online class. The only downfall I encountered was at times not sticking to the suggested "timeline" because when I would over look it I would unfortunately fall behind.

Mine and as I must assume many others terrible traits happens to be procrastination and with an online class it can get the best of you. For the fact that there is no teacher around asking for your daily homework and because of that there is no need to have it done right away. I would have also went to the library more to have more quite time to do more of my homework. Therefore, my advice is to take advantage of the many options this class gives you, follow the timeline to the fullest and try your hardest to avoid the procrastination because it can hurt you in the long run.
